Course Content:

The course will enable students to see business from several points of view, such as those of the owners, managers, customers and employees. They will learn about the problems and decisions facing large and small businesses and gain practical skills in making a success of businesses. They will gain an understanding of business issues and theories. There will be opportunities for students to apply that knowledge to real business cases. Students will study Business Ownership and Objectives, Marketing, Accounting and Finance, People in Organisation, Operations Management and the Business Environment.

Lesson style:

A mix of curriculum and case study based lesson practice. Adding in experience from the wider community and key stakeholder experiences.

Time Allocation:

4 hours per week

Private Study Requirement:

It is expected that all students will read around the subject and complete all tasks and set homework. A grasp and understanding of the developing world and economic climate is also key to personal development

Advisable for following careers:

Business and Management, Economics, Accounting and Marketing. Increasing numbers of universities are offering Business as a joint degree with any other subject. It is also good preparation for a career in business, banking, insurance or accounting

Good Combination with:

Any A Level subject
