

A Level History (AQA)
Unit 2B – The Wars of the Roses, 1450-99
Preparation for Unit 2

Introduction

Unit 2 for A Level History is a depth study focussing on the conflict that has become known as the Wars of the Roses. You will study the origins of the conflict – focussing on the roles and responsibilities of medieval kings and the failure of Henry VI to fulfil these. You will then move on to look at the role played by the failings in the conflict with France and before exploring the various battles and key events of the period. You will also build up a picture of the role played by key individuals, their shifting loyalties and the impact they had on the conflict.

Unit 2 is assessed using contemporary sources, assessing their value for historians studying the Wars of the Roses.
